

Price of Outdoor Power Distribution Box Set for Backyard

Article Overview

Outdoor power distribution box sets for backyard use typically range from $100 to $500 depending on size, amperage, and features.

Price Overview

o

Amazon offers outdoor electrical junction boxes and power distribution enclosures starting around $100 to $250 for smaller ABS water-resistant units with internal mounting panels and hinged covers . Premium models, such as the WESTERN 6506TLSX temporary power box or Connecticut Electric 50-Amp RV panels, may cost $300 or more depending on amperage and included outlets .

Home Depot carries a variety of outdoor power distribution products, including sub-panels and breaker boxes. Prices generally start at $150 for basic outdoor enclosures and can go up to $400-$500 for larger, fully equipped distribution boxes with multiple circuit breakers and weatherproof features . Free shipping or in-store pickup options are often available.

o

Lowe's offers outdoor power distribution and circuit protection products, including sub-panel breaker boxes and meter-main combinations. Entry-level kits with a few single-pole breakers may cost around $120-$200, while more advanced setups with multiple breakers, 50-Amp double-pole breakers, and solar-ready options can reach $400-$500 .

Factors Affecting Price

- o Amperage Rating - Higher amperage boxes (50 Amp or more) are more expensive.
- o Number of Circuits - Boxes with multiple single- and double-pole breakers cost more.
- o Weatherproofing - Outdoor-rated, water-resistant enclosures add to the cost.
- o Included Components - Some sets include breakers, mounting panels, or GFCI outlets, which increases price.
- o Brand and Certification - Recognized brands like Siemens, GE, or Connecticut Electric may be priced higher due to UL listing and durability features.

Recommendation

For a typical backyard setup, a mid-range outdoor power distribution box with 20-50 Amp capacity, weatherproof enclosure, and a few circuit breakers will usually cost $200-$350. For larger or more feature-rich
