Article Overview

Galvanized cable trays in China typically cost between $15 and $50 per 2.4-meter section, depending on type, thickness, and supplier.

Estimated Pricing

- o Perforated or wire mesh trays: Usually $20-$50 per section, depending on customization and material quality .
- o Fittings and accessories: Sold per piece, typically $2-$10 each, depending on type (elbows, tees, reducers) and size .

Factors Affecting Price

- o Material and Coating: Hot-dip galvanized trays are more expensive than pre-galvanized or painted steel due to corrosion resistance .
- o Tray Type: Ladder, perforated, and solid-bottom trays vary in cost; ladder trays are generally the most economical .
- o Length and Load Capacity: Standard lengths are 2.4 meters; longer or heavy-duty trays cost more .
- o Supplier and Volume: Factory-direct or bulk purchases can reduce unit cost, while small orders from distributors may be higher .
- o Location and Logistics: Chenggong is inland, so shipping from coastal manufacturers may add to the final cost, though local suppliers in Yunnan or nearby provinces may offer competitive pricing .

Buying Tips

- o Request quotes from multiple suppliers to compare prices and delivery options .
 - o Consider OEM or customized trays if your project requires specific dimensions or load ratings .
 - o Check for volume discounts if purchasing large quantities for industrial or construction projects .
- In summary, for Chenggong, you can expect hot-dip galvanized cable trays to cost roughly $15-$50 per 2.4-meter section, with fittings priced separately, and final costs influenced by material, type, and supplier logistics .
